Surveyors At Work.

A party of men came in from the east Saturday evening and on Monday began the preliminary survey for the right of way of the Kansas Northwestern. Of course this means that where ever they run a line the people think the road is going to be built along that line. But that is not always the case. There will be several lines run before there is anything definitely done about the location, so don't get excited. The road is going to be built, however, put that down for sure.
